4. Go through each term and ask students what they know about it. Write correct responses on the whiteboard
5. Share the following definitions with students:

credit	a payment option. Gives the person the ability to buy something now with somebody else's money (i.e. financial institution) and pay for it later borrower	person or organization that takes out a loan under an agreement to pay it back later, usually with interest principal	the initial amount of money borrowed interest amount	a fee for borrowing money. The amount of this fee is expressed as a percentage rate.
credit history	a person's history in regards to borrowing and returning money collateral	something pledged as security for repayment of a loan. For example, Bob borrowed money, from a financial institution, to buy a car. He signed a document indicating, if he did not pay back the amount of the loan, the financial institution had the legal right to take the car credit card	a card issued by a lender that gives the cardholder the ability to borrow money by making purchases at the store or a cash advance annual percentage rate (APR)	the yearly interest rate charged on a credit product credit limit	the maximum amount of money you can borrow on a credit card minimum payment- credit card	the smallest amount of money a cardholder can pay to remain in good standing with the credit card company. The amount is either a fixed amount or a percentage of the total amount owing (whichever is greater) plus any fees or accrued interest grace period	the amount of time you are given to pay your balance in full before you are charged interest on what you owe credit card rewards	incentives such as air miles, cashback, etc. cash advance	credit cards allow cardholders to withdraw cash from an ATM or financial institution, up to a certain limit. The interest is often higher than with other credit card transactions and interest calculations usually start immediately

6. Distribute the Understanding Credit Lingo worksheet to students
7. Review the answers with students after they have completed the worksheet
